THE PRESS GETS 'EM AT REPTON

ONE DAY'S JAUNT BRINGS IN MANY SUBSCRIBERS.

Representative Also gathers a Few Items of Interest as He Makes the Rounds.

Repton is located in a beautiful fertile valley six miles northeast of Marion on the Illinois Central.

Their Churches.

Repton has two churches—Baptist and Cumberland Presbyterian, and the public school is nearby. The citizens are mainly prosperous village farmers.

W. T. Perry & Son

This firm does a thriving business in general merchandise. They have been in business ten years and do a tremendous business for a town of that size.

J. A. Nation & Son

Are live wire grocers and their business is growing by leaps and bounds. Their soft drink and ice cream business during the summer is an important branch of their business.

B. M. Duval

Does a good business in milling corn meal, crushing corn, etc. He is also one of the county's famous baseball experts and is quite fond of the game.

Here is SOME Farm.

O. G. Threlkeld, farmer and dairyman owns 350 acres of some of the best farming land in the county and knows how to improve it. He is completing one of the largest, if not the largest, dairy barns in the county. It will stall 60 cows and has a large silo at one end with a tramway on which to run the silage to the mangers. He has a power plant and light system which lights his dwelling, barns and milk house, milks four cows at a time, runs the cream separator, etc. This is the first patent milker this pencil driver ever saw and it is a success. And the beauty of it is that the milk flows down instead of up as it always did when I milked.

This is an ideal farm home. Modern improvements and conveniences will tell on young life. Gives the right sort of contentment, inspiration and ambition.

One of the crying needs of the county is good roads, better and more modern school houses, and more graded schools, modern churches with better heating and lighting systems. Beautifully the grounds and houses and make things inviting. I have been indignant many times in going to church and find no fire, floor littered, pews dusty and a general air around of discomfort. It is a burning shame and disgrace. No wonder the young life becomes disgusted with school and church. Shacks of barns, fences, gates and dwellings are liable to produce the same kind of citizens. The old idea of keeping a boy's nose to the grindstone may increase dad's bank account but it doesn't help to make men.

Five hundred power plants ought to be installed in the next six months on farms in this county. They will light up your premises, saw wood, prepare feed for your stock, put water into your home and barns, as well as do many other little odd jobs around the farm. Surely your wife and girls are tired of drawing water in the cold and rain with over cans. Put in concrete walks for your folks to walk on instead of wading mud to their knees. Quit this everlasting wall of hard times. Mr. Threlkeld had just butchered

MARION TO HAVE MODERN GARAGE.

W. W. Runyan and W. E. Cox have purchased the lot north of the Haynes & Taylor drug store and will erect thereon a splendid modern garage building.

They will be distributors of the Dodge Bros. car and handle a general line of motor car accessories, as well as do a general line of repair work.

The building will be 60x100 feet and of fire proof brick construction with concrete floor, with glass front. It will be a decided improvement to the town and Belleville street.

Mr. Runyan is assistant manager of the Kentucky Flour Spar Co. and has been a resident of Marion about 14 months. Mr. Cox has just recently moved here from Fredonia, where he was engaged in the grocery business and is well known in Marion. They hope to have the garage ready for business by May 1 of next year.

a fine Duroc Jersey hog weighing more than 300 pounds and had 30 more fat ones in the pen. He had just received returns for one can of cream and a check for $27.00.

J. H. More is the obliging postmaster at Repton. Two rural routes go out from this point. F. A. Richardson is on No. 1 and C. E. Clark on No. 2.

I dined in the home of Rev. R. S. Richardson, the live pastor of Marion circuit. For see he is a preacher-farmer and the cats, they were plentiful and well prepared.

J. J. Burton, A. R. Nunn, H. H. Traylor and many others were in Repton shopping. Here I met Ed Ovey the drummer boy mixing up with the merchants.

There is to be a declamatory contest at the Cumberland Presbyterian church on the night of Dec. 26th.

Lexie Harmon is our local editor to whom any and all happenings in this community can be reported.

W. F. HOGARD.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES AT HILL'S CHAPEL.

There was an all day Thanksgiving service at Hill's Chapel on Thanksgiving day. The sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. R. S. Richardson. Several made talks expressing their gratitude. A fair attendance with a good dinner and a delightful service.

The Thanksgiving service at the First Baptist church in Marion was interfered with by disabled furniture.

MEMORIES OF EARLY DAYS

PRESS REPORTER INTERVIEWS OLDEST RESIDENT.

Mrs. Electa M. Frisbie has lived in Marion for more than seventy-five years.

Marion has a resident who has lived here for 75 years.

Her father first bought a dwelling from James Dasa, a log house which stood near where Mrs. T. J. Cameron's residence now stands.

Mrs. Frisbie said to the reporter: "My father, William Carnahan, moved from Madisonville to Marion when I was 15 months old, 75 years ago. He often said he brought all he had with him in a two horse wagon."

"My father was a saddler. He served an apprenticeship with a man in Madisonville for three years. This man gave him a horse and saddle. My father then bought coon hides and took a wagonload to Evansville and sold them, and then bought a stock of leather and set up shop."

"I remember David Bourland, Joe Bourland's grandfather. He learned the saddler's trade under my father and stayed at our house for many years."

"Then there was William Hogard, who owned a large plantation two miles east of Marion. He and my father were good friends. I remember 'Uncle' William would most always bring his saddle bags full of big apples and give them to me. He appointed my father constable, the first public office he ever held and he was afterwards sheriff for eight years."

"The first school I remember was in a little log house down the Ford's Ferry road, now Main street, and Nathan R. Black was the teacher. Mr. Black was the first lawyer I remember seeing."

"Doctor John Gilliam was the first physician I remember knowing. And Rev. Haddon, a Presbyterian, the first minister. When I was quite small church services were held in the court house and later the old brick church was built down on the Princeton road, now South Main."

"My father, mother and one sister were buried down there in the old cemetery."

"I also remember Mr. J. N. Wood, who for years was one of the leading merchants and a prominent citizen. He came here from Illinois. I remember right. I also remember when John W. Blue, David Stinson and many other of the former prominent men came to Marion."

WORLD RECORD ON TOBACCO.

Prior tobacco sold Monday in Owensboro as high as $60.00 per 100 pounds. The average sales of Paducah Monday there was sold 400,000 pounds was $19.00. At $18.75 to $23.75 averaging about $25.00 per hundred pounds.

The markets of Henderson and Hopkinsville open this week.

LOLA GRADED SCHOOL ON ACTIVE LIST.

Three months of the Lola Graded School have passed into history and they have been busy ones.

During the time we had a box supper which brought $43.37 which was invested in a chart, song books, a book case and some hooks.

Our census reports 93, enrollment 98, making 105.37% enrollment based on census. Average attendance for the last month shows 78.5%.

Miss Tommy Conway is a splendid primary teacher and has the pleasant interesting energy it takes to make an ideal primary teacher.

We have some pupils preparing for the teacher's certificate and some for the diploma examination, who are delving deep into the work. Just what it takes to succeed.

We are making preparations for a "Parent-Teacher's association" here before many weeks.

We are trusting no epidemic breaks out to hinder the progress of one county school as it is taking all the work we can do to make up for the time lost last year.

Success to our fellow teachers.

COAL SITUATION IS VERY SERIOUS.

According to the daily papers the entire country is in the grip of a serious coal famine brought on by the strike of soft coal miners.

In Kansas the governor has taken over the mines and called for volunteers to dig coal. Many have responded and they are now turning out some coal.

Louisville is suffering for lack of fuel to run her industries, many of which are either shut down or operating on a short time basis. The fuel regulations are very stringent, retail stores and offices only being allowed to remain open from nine till four and not permitted to display any electric signs at all. No factory can run more than 48 hours each week no matter how much fuel they have on hand.

In many sections of the country schools are having to close for want of fuel. Chicago industries are hit very hard. The Northwest has not enough coal to last them two weeks and are feeling the shortage very keenly.

Locally we are promised enough coal by the administration to prevent actual suffering if the orders of the administration are obeyed. J. A. Hughes is in charge of the situation here. Marion will probably be without light until the emergency is past after the present supply of coal is exhausted.

The miners are very old and are unwilling to go back to work for a 14 per cent increase in wages. There is considerable suspicion that they are tied up in some sort of a secret pact with the operators—to give them as excuse to boost the price of coal.

OCCASIONALLY A SACK OF SUGAR COMES IN.

From time to time the grocers Marion manage to get hold of a sack or two of sugar and dole it out to their sweet hungry patrons as if it were gold dust.

Seemingly the sugar trust has not made an effort to explain why they are not putting the new beet sugar crop on the market. That should have begun to come on our local market some weeks ago.

No one on the outside knows—but a lot of people suspect that this present sugar shortage is more or less hand made—but if it is—you have got to hand it to 'em—it is a humdinger.

Another thing that evidently has not been explained. Evansville got hold of two car loads of the precious crystals one day last week and it was retailed at seventeen and one-half cents per pound. So far as we know Marion has been "kicking in" with two bits whenever they wanted to carry home a pound of sugar—when it was to be had. As freight rates are pretty high now no one is going to be suspected of doing a little—shall we say it?—profiteering.

BAPTIST CAMPAIGN OVER TOP

NEARLY FIFTY PER CENT MORE THAN ASKED FOR.

Enthusiastic Service Last Sunday at Which Everyone Seemed in Mood of Giving.

November 30th was the date set to start the Baptist Seventy-five Million campaign. There was a splendid congregation present at the First Baptist church of Marion. The service was opened with splendid music, the orchestra played and the female quartette sang. The pastor delivered an earnest address on "Moses at Sinai." W. D. Cannon was invited to the rostrum to act as clerk, and three young ladies of 12 summers were called from the congregation to act as pages to distribute cards and fountain pens and wait on the congregation in general.

The offerings soon gained such momentum that Judge Carl Henderson, who was local manager in his church, was pressed into service and finally the business reached such volume that Prof. V. L. Christian was called on to help. When the last card was handed in, the congregation stood and sang "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow" and W. D. Cannon at the close of this song arose and said "I knew all the time that we would go over." We were only asked for $15,000.00 and our pledges show twenty-two thousand and some hundred.

The pastor then arose and called attention to the spiritual atmosphere in which the offering was made and several joined the church. The congregation stood and sang "Marching to Zion."

There are other offerings coming, the pastor thinks they will go near the $25,000.00 mark. The following are some of the churches that we know have gone "over the top." First Salem, Crooked Creek, Caldwell Springs and Piney Creek.

MISS ANNA PHILLIPS DEAD.

Miss Anna Phillips died Saturday Nov. 29, after a long illness and was buried Sunday, Nov. 30th. The funeral service was conducted at the home of the mother by Rev. H. R. Short, at 1 o'clock.

Miss Phillips was the daughter of the late R. E. Phillips and was born in 1864. Besides her many friends she leaves a mother, sister, and brother here, while one sister lives in California and one brother in Oklahoma.

Miss Phillips joined the church at Rosebud when she was eighteen years of age and remained a member there until five years ago, when she transferred her membership to the Marion Methodist church, where she was a member when she died. Interment in the New cemetery.

Fuel Regulations

After consultation with Mr. J. A. Hughes, agent of the U. S. Railroad Administration, who is charged with the duty of distributing and policing the use of coal, the following regulations have been fixed upon to govern the use of coal in Marion.

GROCERIES:—May remain open from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M.; outside of these hours only one light shall be used, and only enough coal burned to prevent actual damage by freezing of perishable goods. On Saturdays, may remain open until 9 P. M.

DRY GOODS STORES:—May remain open from 8 A. M. to 5 P. M. but must not use coal after 4 P. M. No fuel and only one one light to each store outside of above hours. On Saturdays may remain open until 9 P. M.

BARBER SHOPS:—May remain open from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M. Saturdays until 9 P. M.

DRUG STORES AND RESTAURANTS:—May remain open their usual hours, but after 5 P. M. must burn only half their lights.

ALL OTHER STORES AND OFFICES:—May remain open from 8 A. M. to 5 P. M. No exception for Saturdays.

PICTURE SHOWS:—May open from 1 P. M. to 10 P. M.

All government, county or city buildings and offices are excepted from the above, also railroad stations, hotels, telephone and telegraph offices, newspaper plants and battery charging outfits.

Manufacturing plants using coal may operate 48 hours per week only.

The present fuel situation is very serious, and every citizen of Marion is asked to be as saving as possible in the use of both coal and lights, and only burn what is absolutely necessary. If the above regulations are obeyed, we are assured by the fuel administration that enough coal will be available to supply households and prevent actual suffering; if they are not obeyed, our supply may be cut off entirely.

We are informed that no more coal can be supplied to the lighting plant, and that when the present supply, which will last not more than two weeks, is gone we will probably be without lights until the emergency is over.

ROAD BUILDING IS BOOMING

Steady Increase in Federal Aid Business in All Sections—Expenditures $300,000,000.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Since early in 1919 there has been a steady increase each month in the federal aid business in the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture. States in all sections of the country are filing their projects and receiving allotments. The road-building era is in full swing, and it would seem that the end is not yet. All indications point to greater records in the months immediately to come.

Based on complete reports from 44 of the states cash expenditures on the rural roads and bridges of the United States for the calendar year 1918 amounted to $286,068,103. To this should be added the value of statute and convict labor, which cannot be fixed with any great degree of accuracy but probably amounted to not less than $14,000,000, thus making the grand total expenditures for the year $300,000,000. This total is made up of the actual expenditures for such items as labor, materials, supervision and administration directly connected with the construction, improvement and upkeep of public roads and bridges outside the limits of incorporated towns and cities, and does not include any item for sinking-fund payments or redemption and interest on road and bridge bonds.

The year 1918 offered an unprecedented condition in practically all lines of highway work. There was not only a tremendous increase and expansion in the amount of heavy truck traffic on public roads and an unprecedented shortage in regard to road materials, labor and ready funds, but also a decided increase in maintenance work, which was, however, partially offset by a decrease in the amount of new construction.

PLANS FOR GOOD ROAD DRAG

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The design for a road drag shown in the illustration is adapted for localities in which sawed lumber may be readily obtained. In this design the runners are made of 2 or 2½-inch boards, 10 inches wide and from 6 to 8 feet long, re-enforced with other 2-inch boards of the same length, but only 6 inches in width. If more convenient, however, 4-inch runners without re-enforcing boards may be readily substituted for those shown. The method of framing the runners together is a modification of that used

In connection with the split-log type of drag, in this case only two of the cross braces have their ends fitted into auger holes like rungs.

In fastening the draw-chain to a sawed-lumber drag, it is usually advisable to run both ends of the chain through holes in the front runner or else make the connections by means of eye or hook bolts, as shown. The reason for this is that the sawed cross braces are seldom sufficiently strong to withstand the pull of the chain when it is looped over them, as is frequently done when round timber cross-pieces are used. If straight-grained pieces are used for the cross-pieces, however, there is no apparent reason why one end of the chain might not be connected by looping it around the 2½-inch square cross-piece near the cutting end.

Highway Travel Increasing.

Highways travel by means of the passenger automobile increased greatly during the past summer, fully fifty per cent.

Must Have Good Roads.

It costs money to build a good road, but we have got to have them, as the experience of the past and the coming winter will demonstrate.

Hard on Weed Crop.

Fall diskling is hard on the weed crop.

Three Classes of Roads.

Roads may be divided into three general classes, as regards construction—dirt roads, various kinds of macadam, and pavements such as brick, concrete, asphalt, etc.

Good Farm Combination.

Poultry and fruit are two branches of farm life that should be considered upon every farm.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Donner

THE TURKEYS.

"It does seem funny," said old Mr. Turkey.

"Such good food as I've had each year now," said old Mr. Turkey.

"And I've had the best of everything," said old Mrs. Turkey.

"Shouldn't we have the best of everything?" asked young Miss Turkey.

"Of course," said old Mr. Turkey.

"And this is the time of the year when they see that we get it."

"What do you mean?" asked Miss Turkey.

"Well," said old Mr. Turkey, "every year around this time everyone thinks of their turkeys."

"That's nice," said Miss Turkey, "but it is only fair. Don't you agree with me?"

"Of course I agree with you," said old Mr. Turkey. "But there is a reason for the people feeding us at this time of the year."

"They've been feeding us such good things," said Miss Turkey, "for quite a time now."

"Ah, yes," said old Mrs. Turkey, "they begin to fatten us up in plenty of time. They want all the young, tender turkeys to be fat, very fat."

"That's good of them," said young Miss Turkey.

"Maybe you wouldn't think so if you knew the reason," said old Mr. Turkey.

"Do they like to hear us?"

key. "There is a reason for it as I told you."

"Tell me the reason," said young Miss Turkey.

"Let us all hear the reason," said a number of other young turkeys.

"Let us all hear the reason," they gobbled.

"Gobble, gobble, gobble, we're all going to hear the reason."

"All the old turkeys know the reason," commenced old Mr. Turkey.

"But we don't mind hearing it again," said old Mrs. Turkey.

"None of us mind in the least, gobble, gobble, gobble; none of us mind in the least," said the old turkeys.

"We are approaching the time of the year," began old Mr. Turkey, "known as Thanksgiving time. There is one day called Thanksgiving day which is supposed to be a very fine day."

"But it doesn't seem to make much difference to people whether it is a fine day or whether it isn't; they always think Thanksgiving day is a fine day."

"Now after Thanksgiving day comes Christmas day—not the very next day of course, but the next big holiday is Christmas day."

"Folks like to have us for these days, but especially do they like to have us for Thanksgiving day."

"Do they like to hear us gobble and give concerts?" asked Miss Turkey.

"Grateous," said old Mr. Turkey, "how young and ignorant the child is. No, Miss Turkey," he continued, "they do not care to hear us gobble on Thanksgiving day. They care to eat us instead."

"Eat us?" said Miss Turkey.

"Ah, it sounds quite horrible, but at the same time turkeys have always been glad and honored to have been chosen as the special part of the meal of a special day—in fact, of two special days."

"But our master and our mistress here have made pets of us. Really, it has been very funny. They began with a few turkeys, and now there are 13 of us."

"Each year they have fattened up the young ones for some time before Thanksgiving, and the old ones, too, have feasted. But Thanksgiving has come and gone and so has Christmas, and the turkeys are all gobbled still."

"They haven't been able to take their own turkeys for their dinners, so they've fed us up and left us alone; and each year the number grows. A funny, funny situation!"

DAY TO KEEP IN MEMORY

Particular Reason Why Civil War Veteran Recalls Incident of His Military Career.

An interesting story was told by the veteran Maj. George Haven Putnam during his visit in the city last week, says the New York Times.

Maj. Putnam served in the civil war, rose to be adjutant of the 66th Regt. New York volunteers, was captured at Cedar Mountain and confined in Libby prison.

"I was a very small factor in the army of the North, anyway," said Maj. Putnam, "and my absence from the ranks created no panic and was of very little moment to anyone except myself."

The major went on to say that one afternoon while he was confining himself to a dusty Virginia highway he passed a body of Union troops at the wayside and their major saluted him. He was only 21 at the time and these attentions naturally pleased him. A little further along he encountered another group of troops and this time an officer of considerably higher rank did the saluting.

Later on the young adjutant discovered that the major was William McKinley and the officer of higher rank was Brig. Gen. Rutherford B. Hayes.

It was a good deal later, however, before he found out that he had been saluted twice in the same afternoon by men who were to become presidents of the nation.

Robber River.

The discovery that there is a kind of struggle for existence among rivers is one of the interesting results of the modern study of physiography. A notable example of this contest is exhibited by England's two biggest rivers, the Thames and the Severn. Between their valleys lie the Cotswold hills, and exploration shows that the Severn, by eating backward among these hills where softer strata underlie them, has diverted to itself some of the headwaters that formerly flowed into the Thames.—New York Post.

I'M SO GLAD I DIDN'T TAKE NASTY, SICKENING CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Makes You Feel Just Grand and You Can Eat Anything and Not Be Salivated

Calomel salivates! If you feel bilious, headache, constipated. If your skin is sallow, your breath bad, your stomach sour just go to any druggist and get for a few cents a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous Calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty Calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

REBELLION IN STOMACH

"Pape's Diapiesin" at once ends indigestion and Sour, Acid Stomach

Lumps of undigested food cause pain. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you eat is flatulent and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just take a tablet or two of Pape's Diapiesin to help neutralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the pain, acidity, indigestion and distress.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal diet without rebellion; if your food is a danger instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless stomach antacid is Pape's Diapiesin, which costs so little & drug stores—Aidy.

Tennessee Woman RUN-DOWN NERVOUS COULDN'T REST AT NIGHT

Chattanooga, Tenn.—"About three years ago I was so broken down in health that I could scarcely get around to do my housework. My nervous system was in a terrible state—I could not rest at night and felt like crying all the time. I had had suppression for twelve months and my friends thought I was going into a decline. I was just as miserable as one could be when Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was recommended to me and I am confident that this medicine not only restored me to perfect health but saved my life. I took eight bottles and all my nervousness left me entirely. I weighed only 75 pounds but I soon gained weight until I attained my normal weight of 120 pounds. For womanly ailments Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a reliable remedy and I would not hesitate to recommend it to any woman who suffers from irregularity of menstruation and nervousness."—MRS. TENNIE KEYLON, 304 Hyatt St.

FOR YOUNG MOTHERS

Chattanooga, Tenn.—"In my early married life I was very frail and delicate. For eighteen months I was really an invalid, unable to do any of my housework. At last one of my neighbors recommended Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to me to take as a tonic. When I started to take it I was indeed very miserable but my strength soon returned and I had a fine healthy baby. My health from that time on improved and I was stronger and better than I had ever been before. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak and ailing women, and as a tonic for young mothers."—MRS. ALICE HARRIS, 12 Cornelia St.

"ONLY ONE THING BREAKS MY COLD"

"That's Dr. King's New Discovery for fifty years a cold-breaker"

NOTHING but sustained quality and unflinching effectiveness can arouse such enthusiasm. Nothing but sure relief from stubborn colds, coughs and crouping could have made Dr. King's New Discovery the nationally popular and standard remedy it is today.

Fifty years old and always reliable. Good for the whole family. A bottle in the medicine cabinet means a short-lived cold or cough. 50c and $1.20. All druggists. Give it a trial.

Regular Bowels Is Health

Bowels that move spontaneously—free one day and stool the next—should be healthfully regulated by Dr. King's New Life Pills. In this way you keep the impurities of waste matter from circulating through the system by cleansing the bowels thoroughly and promoting the proper flow of bile.

Mild, comfortable, yet always reliable, Dr. King's New Life Pills work with precision without the constipating results of violent purgatives. 25c, as usual at all druggists.

Must Prove It a Fact.

The only trouble with a good opportunity is that it takes some lucky guess with a bit of nerve and pluck to demonstrate that it is good.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by (most) applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

USE HUNTER'S CATHARTIC for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

First Overhead Trolley

The first practical overhead trolley line was built in Kansas City in 1884, in which double overhead conductors were used, with a trolley wheel riding on top of the wire.

EASY NOW TO SAW LOGS AND CUT DOWN TREES

Only one man, or even a boy, with the improved Ottawa Engine Log Saw can easily cut twenty-five to forty cords a day, and at a cost of less than 25c per cord. This machine, which cuts down all others, has a heavy cross cut saw driven by a powerful especially designed 4-cycle gasoline engine. It's a fast money-maker for those using it, and does more than ten men could do, either cutting down trees, sawing logs, or burning branches while you rest. When not sawing, the engine can be used for other work requiring power.

The entire machine is mounted on truck wheels to make it easy to move to the trees or logs, and from cut to cut on a log without stopping the engine. For moving on the road, the truck wheels are placed parallel with the skids and the wheels turn on a two way spindle. You do not have to take them off, but can change direction of wheel travel by merely taking out a pin.

The Ottawa can be fitted for sawing down trees. It cuts level with surface of ground, thereby getting at the timber and leaving no stump sticking up. An automatic friction clutch stops the saw in case of undue resistance. Two men can fall forty to fifty trees a day in ordinary timber.

The whole outfit is compact, simple, durable against a lifetime of hard wear. It sells for a low price and is fully guaranteed for reliable operation in the hands of every one who has tried it out down and logs to work up.

Full information and low factory price in your can be had simply by addressing the Ottawa Mfg. Company 2721 Wood St., Ottawa, Kansas.

Concerning the Story of Wraps

The story of winter wraps has reached its climax, as it always does, with the arrival of the opera season. It begins early in the fall with a recital of the affairs of the stalwart coats that must bear the brunt of rent service throughout the winter, and progresses through many an engraving chapter dealing with more pretentious garments. Finally comes the routine of the brief and splendid careers of evening wraps, some of them wholly frivolous. But each season witnesses certain coats that are as rich and as useful as any; they are the best efforts of the cutters, and include the incomparable coats of fine fur.

In the same class with these, so far as beauty is concerned, are the fur wraps that he camera has reported with such fidelity, shown above. They are made of the hand-woven fur fabrics and completed with collars of natural fur of the best grades. Each is worthy of the other.

The coat at the left is made up of a lustrous and very beautiful material which is a replica of broadtail. It is simple and enveloping with lines that are mingled with wonderful skill, so that it seems to cling to the figure. The sleeves have deep, flaring cuffs that partly cover the hands. There is the simplest of narrow girdles at the front and a big, luxurious shawl collar of fox fur. No brocade, however rich, or cloth of gold can outshine unguileless furs or do more than vie with, as perfect a semblance of them as appears in this coat.

The textile fur in the coat at the right is like sealskin, but more supple. It has a cape-yoke and sleeves cut in one with the body. Its lining is a silk crepe and the wide collar and deep cuffs are of marten fur. The design is especially becoming to slender figures and the coat is so excellent in style and rich in appearance that it belongs in the class with sealskin. Like coats of natural fur, these may appear day or night at any sort of function.

Ingenious Small Wraps of Fur

Although there has been a certain amount of reaction, in the direction of simplicity in fur garments, the mode finds place for much that may not be classed as simple. For last winter designers vied with one another in making small wraps that embodied several different styles in one garment—coats, capotes and scarfs were all suggested in a single hybrid. The designers were endlessly ingenious and the cleverness of these smaller garments gave them a charm that made a very successful appeal. So much so that the same idea has reappeared this season in fur wraps and there is a hint of it in the wide scarfs of brushed or angora wool that are furnished with belts to match.

Among the new models those that are most like a scarf, prove to be the most useful. By discarding the belt they may be worn with a tailored suit when extra warmth is required. Worn with a one-piece frock and belted down they become a cape, wonderfully becoming and convenient for afternoon or evening wear. One of the best of the new models of this kind appears at the right of the two shown in the picture. It is made in several furs; kolinsky, mink, dyed squirrel, sealskin, are all effective in it, but the fur having a dark stripe is best. It is shown in kolinsky with a wide cape collar and a narrow belt. The stripes in the skins are placed to run diagonally across the ends at the front and a fringe of tails adds an appearance of considerable length. The collar may be brought up in the manner fashion.

An Ideal Trimming.

How glad one ought to be to see the ostrich feather come back as trimming for hats for middle-aged women. It has a softness about it that no other hat ornament ever had and is more becoming to old faces than the harsh trimmings that have been in vogue so long.

For Chandeliers.

Apply pure vinegar with a small sponge; afterward wash in soap and polish with flannel or chamois. To renovate tarnished metal parts paint black with the dull black paint used for chandeliers. Or apply white, gilt or any other enamel paint desired.

New Plumage in Paris.

A new suggestion from Paris in the way of plumage trimming comes in the form of white peacock tails. They are being used, up to 24 inches in length, to wind around the crown of a hat. Four to five may appear on a crown, the full hat and sticking out as a trim. Paris also tells of another popular plumage in the shape of cross neck ruffles. These cannot be used in this country, because of the law on their importation but a creditable imitation of them is being produced here in white. White coy is being shown for use in a number of pompadour and flared effects. Bronze coy is very well thought of.

New Ribbons.

The field of ribbon is so wide that it is not possible to outline it in a small space. Entire groups are made of the new ribbons. Bodies are built of them in go with little skirts. Chinese dresses are made of them to wear under topsuits with crepe de chine skirts.

HAIR FALLING? HERE IS WHERE IT SHOWS

Don't worry! Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty.

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of delightful "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair usually stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Your hair will grow strong, thick and long and appear soft, glossy and twice as beautiful and abundant. Try it!—Adv.

TORPEDOED!

Don't blast your Liver and Bowels, but take "Cascarets."

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach and colds.

Are you keeping your liver and bowels clean with Cascarets, or shocking your insides every few days with Calomel, Salts, Oil and violent pills?

Cascarets work while you sleep; they cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Cascarets never gripe, sicken or cause inconvenience and Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

No higher praise is possible and no better remedy can be found for constipation, intestinal troubles, torpid liver and the depressed feeling that accompanies such disorders. It is most valuable for indigestion or nervous dyspepsia and liver trouble, coming up of food, palpitation of heart, and many other symptoms. A few doses of August Flower will relieve you. It is a gentle laxative. Ask your druggist. Sold in all civilized countries.—Adv.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs clean and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Hanriem Oil has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to ailing kidneys. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Hanriem Oil is enclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Hanriem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. At the first sign that your kidneys are not working properly, go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Hanriem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

A BLACK-DRAUGHT FAMILY An Interesting Record

A Letter From the Mother of the Family

Winchester, Tenn., September 17, 1919.

I am the mother of seven boys and seven girls, all about grown. We, I suppose, are one of the healthiest families in the South. . . . We are a large family; you will see very few families, mother and father, with fourteen grown children, who can say that their health is better than ours, and we have used for our family medicine THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT, and very little of anything else.

BLACK-DRAUGHT is the best liver tonic I have ever seen. We have used it for headache, torpid liver and constipation, and it is just as recommended.

Cannot Praise this Remedy too Highly

THE WAY ONE LADY FEELS AFTER SUFFERING TWO YEARS

Judging from her letter, the misery and wretchedness endured by Mrs. Charlie Taylor, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 144, Dillon, S. C., must have been terrible. No one, after reading her letter, can continue to doubt the great healing power of PE-RU-NA for troubles due to catarrh or entarrhal conditions in any part of the body. Her letter is an inspiration to every sick and suffering man or woman anywhere. Here it is: "I suffered two years with catarrh of the head, stomach and bowels. Tried two of the best doctors, who gave me up. I then took PE-RU-NA and can truthfully say I am well. When I began to use PE-RU-NA, I weighed one hundred pounds. My weight now is one hundred and fifty. I cannot praise PE-RU-NA too highly, for it was a Godsend to me. I got relief from the first half bottle and twelve bottles cured me. I advise all sufferers to take PE-RU-NA."

As an emergency remedy in the home, there is nothing quite the equal of this reliable, time-tried medicine, PE-RU-NA. Thousands place their sole dependence on it for coughs, colds, stomach and bowel trouble, constipation, rheumatism, pains in the back, side and joints and to prevent the grip and Spanish Flu. To keep the blood pure and maintain bodily strength and robustness, take PE-RU-NA. You can buy PE-RU-NA anywhere in either tablet or liquid form.

A Wide Margin of Safety

A MAN about to hire a chauffeur asked each applicant how near he could drive to the edge of a precipice.

One said a foot, another said six inches, a third said two inches. But the fourth said, "I keep just as far away from a precipice as I can." He was hired.

The wise property owner, like the careful chauffeur, prefers a wide margin of safety. He insures his possessions to the limit and then takes every precaution against fire.

Insurance only reduces your fire loss. That is why the Fire Prevention Service of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company is as necessary as insurance. Let us explain this service. It is free to all Hartford policy holders.

WOODEN SPOIL

(Copyright, 1919, by George H. Dornan Co.)

By VICTOR ROUSSEAU

Illustrations by Irwin Myers

BUSINESS AND ROMANCE

"Wooden Spoil" is the story of an American's lively adventures in the Canadian woods. He falls heir to a hundred square miles of forest and a lumbering business. Upon taking possession he finds that he has also inherited trouble. Being young and two-fisted, he welcomes the trouble, objects to being run out of the country and goes to work. Doubtless the Seigneur's altogether adorable daughter has something to do with his decision.

Love, jealousy, loyalty, treachery—all the passions of a primitive, red-blooded people—figure in this stirring tale. Strikes, adventure, fighting, hardships—action crowds every chapter.

A manly hero, a lovable heroine, a real love and a happy ending—it's a good story from start to finish.

CHAPTER I.

The Rosny White Elephant.

The office in Quebec which Georges Lamartine, the notary, occupied was located inconspicuously in a small building in an old part of the Lower Town. Small, wiry, dark-haired, with an air of unconvincing plausibility about him, Monsieur Lamartine was seated at his desk, drumming his fingers, staring out of the window, and turning again to look at a letter signed Hilary Askew, when his boy brought him a card with the same name upon it. Monsieur Lamartine frowned.

"Tell Monsieur Askew that I am busy with an important court case," he said. "Ask him to call at this time tomorrow."

"Mr. Askew says he's busy, too, and he'll wait," announced the boy, returning.

The notary considered. "Well, tell him I'll see him in a few minutes," he answered.

When the boy was gone he took down the telephone receiver and gave a number.

"Is that you, Brousseau?" he asked. "Monsieur Hilary Askew has turned up."

There was a sputtering at the other end of the line which made the notary smile.

"I can't say. I haven't seen him yet," said Monsieur Lamartine, in answer. "But if I can't send him home with a smile on his lips and a check in his pocket I shall try to keep him in Quebec until I have seen you. And you'd better try to get Morris by long distance and warn him. Good-bye."

He hung up the receiver, rang for the boy and told him to admit Mr. Askew. Then he rose to receive his visitor.

He looked at Hilary keenly as he shook hands with him. The young man was different from what he had expected. He was about as big, and he had the same air of American energy; but he appeared more determined, he looked like one of those uncomfortable men who have the knack of disconcerting themselves from sophistries.

However, Hilary looked good-natured. And he was certainly inexperienced. Monsieur Lamartine gave him a chair and looked very plausible indeed.

"Your visit has followed very close upon your letter, Mr. Askew," he said. "Perhaps you did not get mine, telling you to wait before coming to Quebec?"

"No," said Hilary. "But I would have come anyway. I want to get this matter settled."

"The American hustle," said the notary, looking almost ingenuous. "But the law is not to be taken by storm, least of all in Quebec. It is only a month since your uncle died. Perhaps it will be months before we run into over the property to you. I understand that you were not in close touch with your uncle during his latter years?"

"I hadn't seen him since I was a boy. That was what made the legacy a surprising one. He had not shown any interest in me. I had a hard fight to get through my forestry course. So when I heard that I had become the owner of a tract of a hundred square miles it seemed like an intervention of Providence. That is almost a kingdom, sir."

"Ten miles by ten?" inquired the notary, smiling. "Well, I suppose it does seem a large territory to you, although the Rosny seignior was one of the smallest of the old feudal grants. It is almost the last on the north shore of the St. Lawrence that remains in the hands of the original family."

"Four hundred thousand dollars seems a big sum for my uncle to have paid for it," said Hilary.

"Your uncle," said Monsieur Lamartine, beginning to drum softly, "made this investment against the advice of a good many people. The Rosny timber rights are practically valueless, because the wood is principally balsam fir instead of pine and spruce."

He noted that Hilary only watched him instead of answering, and he began to feel that he would not be disposed of as easily as he had anticipated.

"The property has never begun to pay its way," continued Monsieur Lamartine. "Your uncle paid three hundred and fifty thousand for the cutting rights alone. He found himself up against the law which places a limit on the size of trees. Seven inches for black, or swamp spruce; twelve or thirteen for pine. And nearly all the trees on the Rosny lands that aren't fir are under the legal size. Your uncle sank half his fortune in it. He was—excuse me—eccentric. In his case the timber cannot be cut except at a loss, on account of its sparseness and the high cost of transportation. The balsam fir is too gummy to make any but inferior paper, below the standard even of the newspapers. It occupies the greater portion of the tract, together with second growth birch, which is, of course, of use only for firewood. The expenses are very considerable. In short, Mr.

Askew, I cannot advise you to consider your uncle's legacy seriously."

"I'm sorry to hear that," answered Hilary. "But I suppose something can be done with the wood. There are uses besides pulp-wood to which the timber can be put?"

Monsieur Lamartine drummed his fingers for quite a while before answering.

"A company with a large capital might find it commercially profitable to develop your tract," he said presently. "But no man without an ample fortune and a thorough knowledge of lumber conditions in this province could dream of pulling out even."

Hilary leaned forward in his chair. "Monsieur Lamartine," he said, "I'll tell you how I view this matter. I offer. Will you let me have the papers, Monsieur Lamartine, including the last half-yearly statement and the map of the limits?"

"But it is entirely irregular, Mr. Askew. Really—"

"Let me have the papers, please," said Hilary, smiling. "And you need have no fear that you will be held responsible for my anticipating my inheritance. I imagine I have as much right there as Mr. Morris."

"Of course, if that is your decision, there is nothing more to say," answered the other brusquely. He pulled out a drawer and removed an envelope containing some documents.

"You will find the statement here," he said. "Mr. Morris has the books and the map of St. Boniface. I wish you a pleasant journey, sir. You wish me to continue to represent you?"

"For the present, yes. Good-bay."

When he was gone Monsieur Lamartine sat back in his chair and drummed his fingers for nearly a minute. Then he pulled up Brousseau.

"He's just gone," he said. "And he starts for St. Boniface tomorrow morning. In spite of all my representations."

He smiled at the sputtering that came over the wire.

It was well into the afternoon when Hilary reached St. Boniface on the small tri-weekly mail boat. For fifty or sixty miles below Quebec the country, sparsely inhabited though it is, and primitive, contains settlements with shingled houses, hotels, tourists in season; and it was not until the St. Lawrence widened into the Gulf that Hilary realized, almost with surprise, that the ship was sailing into a territory as primitive as it had been a score of years after Jacques Cartier landed. Something of the primeval nature of the land entered Hilary's heart and gripped it. He had never known what it was he wanted. But he knew now: it was to take hold of a virgin land and tame it, to grapple with life, not among the men of cities, but somewhere with the smell of the pines and of the brown earth in his nostrils. Feeling the deck of the little ship, he felt that his desires had come to light at the moment when their fulfillment had become possible.

He looked about him with approval when he stood upon the porch of the tiny hotel at St. Boniface. Nobody else had got off the boat, and evidently the landlord of the little hotel expected nobody. After an ineffectual attempt to enter into conversation with him, in which hardly a word was mutually intelligible, Hilary gave up the effort and started up the hill road which led, he surmised, toward the lumber mill.

The whole settlement was gathered about the shores of the little bay. Beyond it were the mountains, on either side the forest-rimmed hills, broken, on the east, by an inlet, and on the west by the deep cleft of the Rocky river, whose mouth, closed by a basin, was a congested mass of logs.

Hilary crossed the bridge and approached the mill. Two or three men, lounging outside the store, looked at him without any sign of interest. Everything was very still and peaceful; there was hardly a sound to be heard except the distant hum of the mill machinery.

Between the dam and the store, upon a terrace heaped with tin cans and miscellaneous debris, were piles of wood in four-foot lengths, each comprising about two hundred cords. Kneeling at the narrow end of one of these piles was a little man, whose clean-shaven upper lip, the whiteness of which contrasted with a sunken face, indicated that a waterwreath had grown there recently. He was sealing, or measuring the pile, and Hilary surveyed him with interest.

It was unobtrusive, and most of it was black spruce; there was also some white spruce and a little pine. The mass in the river, if it consisted of wood of the same quality, hardly substantiated Lamartine's statements.

"You seem to have some good spruce on the seignior's," said Hilary.

The little man leaped to his feet, waving his arms. "What you want here?" he demanded. "Strangers are not permitted on the company's property. If you want to buy at the store, you go by the road."

Hilary looked down coolly at the excited little man. "I'm Mr. Askew, and I've come to take charge of my property," he answered.

"The little man was bereft of vocal powers for quite some time. "But Mr. Morris, he ain't here," he gasped at length.

"Well, he ought to be here. That's what I'm paying him for," said Hilary. "What's your name?"

"Jean-Marie Baptiste."

"Perhaps you didn't expect me, Monsieur Baptiste?"

"Holy Name, no! It was said that you had sold out to the company."

"What company?" demanded Hilary.

"The company at Ste. Marie. Monsieur Brousseau's company."

"See here, Baptiste," said Hilary, taking the other by the arm. "Let us begin by understanding each other. I know nothing about any company except myself. I own this district, the land, the timber, the mill. Have you got that?"

Jean-Marie gaped again, and then diplomatically disengaged himself.

"I guess you want to see Mr. Cannell, the foreman," he said. "It ain't my job. You'll find Mr. Cannell in the store."

"Bring him here," said Hilary. "Tell him I'm waiting for him."

The little man departed at a trot, quite evidently startled and scared, and casting back comical looks from time to time over his shoulder as he went.

His statement in the store must have created a good deal of sensation, for presently two clerks, as well as the two loungers, who had gone inside, came to the door and stared. Disengaging himself from among these came the foreman, a tall, lean, lanky New Englander, whose deliberate stouch and typical bearing warmed Hilary's heart instantly. He knew the type. He knew it only one with the New England blood knows his own.

"I'm Laffé Cannell, at your service, Mr. Askew," said the foreman, coming up to Hilary and standing respectfully before him.

"I suppose I should have let you people know that I was coming," said Hilary.

He wondered why Laffé Cannell whistled; he knew nothing about Brousseau's telephoning warning.

"I guess you'll find things upset a little," said Cannell. "Mr. Morris has been away for a couple of weeks, seeing to his other interests, and I can't exactly do much for you till he comes back. It's our slack month, you know, Mr. Askew. The men don't go into the woods until September, and we don't keep a large force employed on the mill work."

"Tomorrow's soon enough to start in," said Hilary. "I'm pleased to have met you, Mr. Cannell."

"Wait a minute," said the foreman. "If you don't mind having me, I'll go up to the hotel with you. Maybe there'll be some things that you'll want to ask me."

"All right," said Hilary.

They went together silently across the shingled bridge and ascended the hill, each quietly taking stock of the other. At the top, where a branch road ran off at right angles to that which crested the bluff, a figure on horseback appeared in the distance.

It was a girl, riding side-saddle. As the horse drew near she pulled in to take the brush road without scattering the dust, passing within a few feet of Hilary. He saw that she was about twenty years of age, or a little more, slight, very straight upon the saddle, with gray-blue eyes and brown hair blown by the wind about her flushed cheeks. There was a combination of dignity and simplicity about her, both in her demeanor and in the way she rode, and in her acknowledgment of Cannell's greeting.

Hilary watched her center up the road till she had disappeared among the trees. Then he realized that he had not taken his eyes off her since he had first seen her.

"That," said Laffé, "is Mamzelle Madeleine Rosny. Her father's what they call the Seigneur."

"The owner of the Chateau?" asked Hilary, although he knew this perfectly.

"Yes, Mr. Askew. I guess she wouldn't have smiled so pleasant if she had known who you was."

"Why, Mr. Cannell?"

Laffé jerked his thumb vaguely about the horizon. "Proud old boy," he explained. "Family's been here high on a thousand years, I guess—lastways, since them Frenchmen first came to this continent. Hated like thunder to sell out to your uncle. But I guess he was laid poor, like the rest of them, and Mamzelle Madeleine must have cost him a mint of money floundering in the river at St. Boniface."

Hilary turned this over in his mind as they continued their walk along the bluff and then down the road to the hotel. The idea of any personal ill-feeling on the Seigneur's part or on that of his family had not occurred to him. Though he did not expect to meet Monsieur Rosny, except possibly in the course of his business, he was conscious of a feeling of regret, and also of a half-formed resolution, the nature of which he would not admit, to put relations upon a pleasant footing.

In the hotel the landlord's wife was already preparing supper. They ate an omelet, washed down with strong fore. Now you take a Dutchman or a Dago—their ways ain't our ways, but they're more or less human. These people ain't. They paint their houses yellow and green, when they paint 'em at all. I never saw a yellow house with a green porch in my life till I come up here."

"Just a difference of taste, Mr. Cannell."

"Maybe," said Laffé, spitting. "Maybe it's all right not to have sense to plaster their houses, so as to freeze to death in winter time. Maybe it's all right to run to Father Luce when there's a forest fire, instead of getting to work and putting it out. Maybe he ran pray it out for them. I got nothing against the place, except that my wife Charlie and the kids are in Shueburyport, and I'd rather not here alone than bring 'em up. But what's the use? I'm here and I got to stay here," he ended, shrugging his shoulders.

Laffé was a bad cross-questioner, and the task put upon him by Brousseau was not only unbecomingly but impossible for a man of his temperament. However, he made a valiant attempt to draw Hilary out. "You're thinking of spending some time here, Mr. Askew?" he asked.

"I've come to take charge. I'm going to stay," said Hilary.

Laffé looked at him curiously. What sort of a man could this be who chose of his volition to reside in St. Boniface?

"I guess you'll change your mind when you've seen it a little longer," he said incredulously.

"In the country, Mr. Cannell, I mean to take hold, and I mean to make it pay. It hasn't paid very well, I understand?"

Laffé floundered. "I've heard it don't pay as much as it ought."

"I understand that most of the timber is below the size at which cutting is allowed?"

Laffé stared at him. "Why, them rules are for government land!" he answered. "You can cut any size on freehold. The timber ain't so bad—leastways, some of it ain't."

Hilary began to think hard. On this point Lamartine had clearly and definitely lied to him.

"Too much fir on the property?" he asked.

"Why, there is some fir," conceded Laffé. "But there's some good spruce along the Rocky river," he added, again adding of his instructions.

"I saw a good deal in the river."

"Why, that ain't our cutting—not much of it," said Laffé. "Most of that comes from the Ste. Marie limits."

"Where is Ste. Marie?"

"Ste. Marie's two miles along the coast, beyond our settlement," said Laffé. "Most of our hands come from there. It's a tough place, Mr. Askew. I seen some tough towns in the West, but this has got 'em all beat, with the stoungeling of French, and the drinking, and the fights every Saturday night—there was a man killed there last week; and not a policeman within fifty miles, and nobody except Father Luce, and he can't hold 'em."

"What I want to know," said Hilary, "is, what this company is that you speak about, and how they come to use the Rocky river for their logs?"

Laffé hesitated, but only for a moment. Then he mentally cast Brousseau to the winds; for, after all, if Hilary meant to know, nobody could prevent it. Brousseau's instructions notwithstanding.

"It's this way, Mr. Askew," he said. "Mr. Morris and Mr. Brousseau have a company of their own. Their limits touch ours on the west, across the river, and run ten miles or so back into the bush, right alongside ours. They got the right to float their logs down the river."

"And use the mill?"

"Mr. Morris leases the use of our mill by the year to the company."

Hilary was staggered for the moment. Morris, as his uncle's manager, leasing the mill to Morris, a partner in Brousseau's company, seemed a queer role.

"How do they tell our lumber from theirs?" asked Hilary presently.

"Oh, that ain't hard," said Laffé. "You see the fiddlers, who subdivide the tracts, know how much their men have cut. And it's sealed in the woods before they shoot it down stream. I guess there ain't no difficulty there, Mr. Askew. And you see, Mr. Morris representing both concerns, he naturally does his best by both of 'em."

I guess there ain't no difficulty there, Mr. Askew. And you see, Mr. Morris representing both concerns, he naturally does his best by both of 'em."

He tapped the sides out of his pipe and pocketed it.

"He's got old Rosny in his pocket," he said, leaning toward Hilary. "He's got him bound and mortgaged after lending him to throw your uncle's money away in crazy investments. He did it deliberately, Mr. Askew. When he was a kid, growing up among the house servants up at the Chateau, he wanted to be a big man, for which I don't blame him. He got his way, but that wasn't enough. He wanted the Seigneur's place, because he found that the folks up here thought more of old Mr. Rosny, with his broken-down house and debts, than they did of him with all his money. So he set to work and got him rich."

"The old man likes and despises him, and he's been fighting against it for a long time, but he seen what's coming to him and I guess he's made up his mind he'll have to stomach it. Brousseau's staked old Mr. Rosny's pride against his love, and I guess he's won his stake and won Mamzelle Madeleine into the bargain."

He rose. "That'll be all for tonight, Mr. Askew," he said.

Hilary rose too. "Thanks, Mr. Cannell," he said. "In the morning I shall ask you to show me around the place."

He didn't follow Laffé Cannell inside the hotel, but sat upon the porch, musing. Laffé had enlightened him on several points. He doubted whether Lamartine had spoken anything approaching truth concerning the property, and he was sure that Morris and Brousseau were the company in whose behalf he had offered forty-five thousand dollars. There would be need of a good many explanations from Morris. Yet Hilary felt instinctively that it was Brousseau, not Morris, with whom he would have to contend.

On the face of the soft night rose the face of Madeleine Rosny painted with surprising clearness. He saw the blue of her eyes, the curve of her flushed cheek, the dignity and gentleness and pride that tinged in her looks. If ever he had any quarrel with Brousseau, he would show him—

Then he cursed himself for a fool, and, entering the hotel, took his lamp and went up to his room.

If you have read "Tarus Bullo," Gogol's story of the Cossack, then you will know what I mean when I say that last night I had a chance to see a real picture of the Cossack, which William A. Burman in the Yale Review. It was at sunset when over the tops of the white birches the heavens looked as if on fire, while to the right the clouds were like waves rolling over a sea of pluck. I heard a shout, "The Cossacks are coming," and through the opening in the woods rode these lovers of war. The horse and the rider are one; both were tired, but there was something that told you that if the battle had blown all the tiredness out of them, they would

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Piquette, N. Y., for a sample bottle. 'HONK, HONK!' THERE YOU ARE

After That It Was Easy to Understand Where Old Lady Wanted Letter to Go.

A portly Dutch woman applied to the post office for a money order to send to her son in the far East. She told the clerk she had left her son's letter at home, but said he was "some place out in China, dot sounds like der noise in automobile makes."

The clerk smiled, and turning to another nearby, he said: "What kind of a noise does an automobile make, Joe?"

"Honk, honk!" the other suggested. "Yah, dot's it," explained the woman, her face brightening. "Honk honk, dot's der place."

So the clerk made the order payable to Hongkong, and the woman went away happy.

"Stang!" ejaculated the superintendent. "Well, believe me, Alice, you'll have to cut that out now."

NOT AT ALL BAD REASONING

Few Have Real Confidence In Advice That Is Handed Out by Acknowledged Failures.

Harold Holt Wright, the novelist, said in an after-dinner speech in San Francisco:

"After all, success—financial success—is the best proof of a book's merit. All good books, from 'Robinson Crusoe' down, have had phenomenal success—made hundreds of thousands of dollars."

"We all know this is true about financial success. We are all like the tramp who asked the old gentleman for the piece of a glass of beer."

"I have no money," the old gentleman said, "but I will give you a little advice, friend."

"The tramp lit a cigarette butt and blew a contemptuous puff of smoke into the old gentleman's face."

"Well, if ye ain't got no money," he said, "yer advice can't be very valuable."

MORE GOOD THINGS.

On a chilly night a dish of hot soup is one of the most appetizing of all foods with which to start the evening meal. If the dinner to follow is a substantial and filling meal the soup may be light and stimulating with but little nourishment, but if the food which is provided be light a cream soup, bisque or chowder should be the first dish.

Soup a la Clermont.—Take the upper crust of a small French loaf, cut in small pieces, remove the crumb and put into a bowl with two cups of well-seasoned stock. Place in a moderate oven for half an hour. Slice four large onions, fry brown in butter, drain, and boil for twenty minutes in beef stock to cover. Add the onions and the bread to two quarts of hot beef stock; pour into a soup tureen and serve with grated cheese, passed on a separate plate.

Mushroom Soup.—Cut into dice one and one-half cups of fresh mushrooms. Stew until tender in a cupful of beef stock. To this add one quart of stock. Thicken with a tablespoonful of flour mixed with a tablespoonful of butter. Season with salt and pepper and minced parsley.

Combination Soup.—Put into a soup kettle a ham bone, a leekbone and a pot of red pepper and two cups of split peas. Cover with cold water and simmer until the peas are soft. Take out the bones and pepper, season to taste and serve.

Bean Soup.—Put into a soup kettle two cups of baked beans, two cups of canned tomatoes, an onion finely chopped, and six cups of cold water. Simmer until the beans are soft, rub through a sieve, reheat, season and serve.

Turkey Soup.—Cover the bones and trimmings of cold roast turkey with cold water. Add a stalk of celery, chopped fine, a pinch of powdered sweet herbs, simmer for several hours, strain, season to taste and thicken with a tablespoonful of each of flour and butter blended with a little of the soup.

BREAKFAST DISHES.

Of all breakfast cakes the griddle cake is the one most favored; the old-fashioned griddle cake is easily distinguished from the duck, soggy, lenden varieties found in eating houses and even in private kitchens.

Butter for griddle cakes should be thoroughly beaten, and an egg or two will be found quite an addition to the texture of the cakes. Use a cake turner and never turn a cake but once, as a soggy cake is sure to result. A perfect pancake batter will be smooth elastic and will keep its shape when spread on the griddle.

Buckwheat Griddle Cakes.—For the colder months these cakes are more common than the wheat and are used quite freely. To serve to get a good brand of buckwheat flour. Make a batter of cold water and buckwheat flour with a softened yeast cake, or if home-made yeast is used, a half-cupful, then set away in a warm place to rise evenly. In the morning, take out a cupful of the batter to use for the next day's cakes. Add water and once buckwheat flour to make a thick batter and set away. To the batter which is to be used for the morning's cakes add some or sweet milk, salt and a bit of soda; beat and thin to a good batter, then cook as usual. A thin batter makes a more tender cake. This original batter will be good for several weeks if the breakfast batter is never added to that to be used the next day.

Rice Pancakes.—Mix two cups of milk and let stand in a cool place overnight. In the morning add three cups of sifted flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of melted butter and one tablespoonful of sugar. Beat until thoroughly mixed with two cups of milk, a tablespoonful of baking powder and three eggs, the stiffly-beaten whites added last.

KILLING COOTIES OF CHICKEN YARD

Biting and Sucking Insects Are Serious Enemies of All Classes of Poultry.

PESTS DEVELOP DISCOMFORT

Mites and Lice Decrease Efficiency in Production of Eggs and Meat—Hens Become Irritable and Decline in Health.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.
Of Lady Hen doesn't object to scratching for a living, but she balks on scratching for worms all day and then having to scratch all night at vermin which delight in strutting over her during the era of darkness.

Fowl lice and mites reduce egg production, hinder the growth and reduce the quality of flesh of all classes of poultry. Mites are particularly bad among fowl, and these blood-sucking insects often gain a firm foothold in the flock before the farmer is aware of their presence. The hens become irritable and decline in egg production and healthy condition as a result of losing blood to the mites. In heavily infested coops it is not unusual for the chickens to become droopy and weak, with pale combs and wattles. The mites feed almost entirely at night, except that they attack hens on the nests during the daytime. They secrete themselves in cracks and crevices around the chicken house during the day, and hence their presence often is overlooked until a heavy infestation has developed.

Root Mites From Roosts.

In controlling mites it is first of all essential to drive the pests from the roosts, nests and interior of the poultry house, which should be sprayed with a mixture of one part kerosene to four parts of crude petroleum. Occasionally an application is sufficient, but as an extra precaution it is advisable to spray a second time about one month after the first treatment. Poultry should be kept out of the treated buildings until the material has well dried into the wood.

Arsenical dip, as a spray, such as is used to destroy cattle ticks, is also fairly satisfactory as a control for chicken mites; several applications are required to eradicate the mites from the poultry roosts. The mites which cause scaly legs usually can be eradicated by applying crude petroleum to the legs with a brush or dipping them into it. One treatment is usually enough.

Lice Like to Live on Poultry.

If poultry escape infestations of mites they are still exposed to visitations from lice, which, unlike the mites, remain constantly with the fowl. More than forty different kinds of lice attack domestic fowls and feed on portions of the feathers or on scales from the skin, their presence in any considerable number resulting in serious injury.

Sodium fluoride means sure and instantaneous death to poultry lice, and in either the dust or dip form it is the practical control. This material in the dust form is applied by the "punch" method, which consists in holding the fowl by the legs or wings in one hand, while with the other hand a small pinch of the chemical is placed on the head, one on the neck, two on the back, one on the breast, one on the tail, one near the vent, one on either thigh, and one on the underside of each wing when spread. This material may also be applied in a shaker consisting of a tin can with nail holes punched in the bottom, the chemical being mixed with coad dust or flour.

MAKE TEST OF SUNFLOWERS

Plants Will Be Mixed With Corn in Silo as Sort of "Ham Sandwich" for the Cows.

In many parts of the country good crops of sunflowers were grown this year for experiments in feeding. The sunflowers will be mixed with corn in the silo as a sort of "ham sandwich" for the cows. A few experiments in former years have shown considerable value for the sunflowers.

CONCRETE FLOORS ARE BEST

Conservation of Soluble Manure Makes Big Returns in Shape of Various Farm Crops.

By increasing the value of manure produced, concrete floors for feeding studies will return their cost in about one year, as shown by tests at the Ohio experiment station. The extra crop returns from manure feed on concrete floors is due to the soluble plant food in the manure; this seeps away where earthen floors are used.

The cost of concreting floors generally amounts to about $5 per animal in the ordinary feeding stable and the saving in manure is equal to this amount of every 1,000 pounds in live weight of steers or cattle fed for the year, as compared with animals fed on earth floors.

Concrete floors also make it easier to provide better sanitary places for animals.

ATTENTION GIVEN TO FEEDING FALL PIGS

Improvement in Their Care Is Urged by Professor Eyward.

System of Feeding "Cafeteria" Style and Types of Houses Attract Comment—Pigs Are Pushed Along From Start to Finish.

At the Iowa agricultural experiment station at Ames, a great deal of attention has been given to fall pigs. Prof. John M. Eyward, chief of swine production, has been a leader in advocating an increase in the number of fall pigs and in the improvement of their care. His system of feeding them "cafeteria style" and his types of hog houses have attracted much attention.

Professor Eyward says:

"For a number of years the animal husbandry section of the experiment station has been feeding pigs that come in the last days of August or during September. We push them from start to finish, until in April, and it is not unusual for them to weigh around 250 pounds, not so bad for pigs of eight months of age, fed eight through the cold winter. Our fall pigs gain practically as well as our spring pigs. We have had fall pigs return us within five cents a bushel as much for the feed they ate as the spring pigs. These fall pig "pointers" are offered out of the experience of the experiment station:

1. Keep the pigs warm and dry.
2. Keep the pigs sanitary, killing off the lice, worms and other parasites.
3. Feed them exceptionally well; in truth, feed them "free-choice style," give them a chance at corn and tankage in separate feeders.
4. Give them plenty of water. It is not essential that you warm it, but a little warm water once or twice a day is all right.
5. Believe in the fall pigs and have faith in them and they will make good. If you do your part, they will.

VICIOUS BULLS ARE SAFEST

Gentle Animal is Cause of Most Trouble, Because Little or No Precaution Is Taken.

The gentle bull has many victims as the gun that isn't loaded, or the hunter who "thought it was a deer." It's the gentle bull that causes the trouble in most cases. "The bull had never before shown an ugly disposition," says one clipping. "The bull had always been considered gentle," says another; and so on through the list. Because the victims thought the gentle bull, they took no precautions, which leads us to say: Never trust a gentle bull! Better look down the barrel of a rifle! "Bulls, like cold, stonewall eggs, should always be considered bad," a friend wisely said the other day. Warning about vicious bulls is seldom necessary, for nobody trusts them.

NITROGENOUS FEEDS NEEDED

To Make Hogs Gain Rapidly and Economically They Must Have Other Feed Than Corn.

Some nitrogenous supplement must be supplied to make hogs gain rapidly and economically when they are given the run of the cornfield to do their own harvesting. At least part of this supplement may be in the form of a roughage such as alfalfa, clover or soybean pasture. If provision has not been made to have clover, alfalfa or rape pasture in the field adjoining the corn or if soy beans have not been planted in the corn or in an adjacent field, then it is essential to feed some nitrogenous supplement such as tankage, linseed oil meal or middlings.

RUSSIAN THISTLE IS USEFUL

It Has Been Used in Silo and Cut for Hay in Regions Where It Has Been Deemed Pest.

In regions where the Russian thistle has been considered a pest, it has been used both in the silo and cut for hay. When cut for hay the mow is started just as the spikes commence to harden or even earlier.

Use Clean Packages.

Don't market apples in a flour sack or dirty box and expect to get a good price. Clean, well-graded, unbruised fruit in a clean package always sells at a good price and makes a reputation for the grower.

Covering for Strawberries.

Strawberries may be mulched with clean straw to the depth of four or five inches as soon as the ground freezes. Corn fodder is apt to be too heavy for this purpose.

DAIRY FACTS

SCHOOLS TAKE UP DAIRYING

Bulletin Published by Department of Agriculture Has Twelve Lessons on Subject.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To add impetus to the teaching of dairying in elementary rural schools Bulletin 763, just published, contains 12 lessons on the subject. With each lesson are given helpful directions for home projects that may be worked out with profit to every community and with real educational value to pupils. Practically all the subject material for class use and instructions for home projects can be found in available bulletins either free or at small cost, but teachers and pupils are advised to use additional sources of information, such as the printed matter from dairy cattle breeders' associations, books on dairying, and farm and dairy journals.

According to the bulletin teachers of agriculture are agreed that instruction on that subject should follow certain definite lines—it should be seasonal, be local in its interests, meet the needs of the pupils, and be practical. The home-project plan affords the best means of meeting these conditions, especially the practical side, for by it the pupil works out for himself the principles and theories taught in the classroom.

The term "home project," applied to instruction in elementary and supplementary agriculture, includes as a requisite a plan for home work and related instruction in agriculture at the school. It should be a problem new to the pupil; the parent and pupil should agree with the teacher on the plan; some competent person must supervise the home work; detailed records of time, method, cost, and income must be honestly kept; and a written report based on the record should be submitted to the teacher.

One of the means by which teachers may learn the dairy interests of the district is a dairy survey. The pupils may assist in obtaining this information, but first-hand knowledge obtained by the teacher will be valuable. This survey should tell the kind of farm (crop or stock), purpose of dairy cows (commercial or home use), breeds of cattle, feeds raised, feeds purchased, milk records kept, how milk is tested, how milk is disposed of, and dairy conveniences. Information should be tabulated as it is collected. In addition the teacher with the pupils' help should prove charts showing the points of a typical dairy cow, samples of dairy records showing how they should be kept, directions showing the food value of milk, and drawings showing a section of the model dairy farm, milk house, etc.

The bulletin contains lessons, giving sources of material, on the following subjects: Producing clean milk, care of milk and cream, weighing milk, testing milk, keeping of records and marketing dairy products, profit and loss (good and poor cows), judging and purchasing stock, care in handling of the dairy cow and barn, butter manufacture, food value of milk and its use in the home, making cottage cheese, cooking with milk products, and the use of milk as a supplement to other foods.

GOOD RATION FOR DAIRY COW

Ohio State University Recommends Mixture of Ground Corn, Oats, Bran, Gluten and Meal.

A good dairy ration recommended by the dairy department of the Ohio State university is made of the following grains: Ground corn, one part; oats, one part; bran, one part; gluten, one part; cottonseed meal, half a part; linseed oil meal, three-fourths part. Feed one pound of this mixture to each two to four pounds of milk, depending upon the percentage of butterfat. This should be fed in connection with silage, clover or alfalfa hay and either sugar beets or beet pulp. Soy bean hay is also desirable.

Train Eye and Mind.

Have your eyes and mind trained so you can tell, by looking at the cow, her feed and milk sheet, whether she has received proper feed and treatment or not.

Cows Pay for Extra Feed.

Cows that are giving milk will generally more than pay for the extra feed in increased milk production.

Clean and Sanitary Milk.

PLACE FOR POPULAR MUSIC

Dance Tunes and Rellicking Choruses Appeal, So Why Hesitate to Acknowledge It?

It stands to common sense, writes Nanette van Alstyn in the Etude, that we cannot all like the same things in music any more than we can all enjoy the same things at table. And we would not be ashamed to confess to a liking for baked beans, or to distaste for angel cake. Why, then, feel embarrassment in declaring that in some moods we have a "neaking" penchant for the trip of a popular dance tune, or the gay lift of the latest chorus?

All music has some good in it. And remember it was not Beethoven or Debussy or Schriabin or Schoenberg who played the boys into battle. It was popular music—the "Over There's," the "Tipperaries" and their multitude of syncopated everyday cousins—that lightened the march over the dismal roads. And it was plain, Sunday-evening-at-home hymn tunes that comforted and soothed the boys when they limped out of the line. Let us, then, be democratic and admit this damaging evidence. In real life we do not—even the most high-browed of us—always converse in blank verse. Sometimes we do condescend to popular phraseology—occasionally even a slang word will fit our meaning or our mood.

RETORT COURTEOUS

ENGLISH WOMEN BUY FARMS.

Women in England are buying their own farms or their own truck and garden spaces in rather conspicuous numbers. This is an outcome of the tremendous work done by women on the land during the war. The general feeling is that there will not be much room for the common female farm laborer as time advances, but for the woman who has a little money and who looks upon farming as her profession and her life work there is excellent opportunity in this direction. On account of the compact location of the garden spaces and the cities in England, transportation of food-stuffs is easy. Garden truck and flowers grow abundantly and profusely there.

LEARNING GOLF.

Some years ago the majority of women knew nothing about golf, and many good anecdotes are told of some of the curious ideas they held regarding the game. One lady, making sympathetic conversation at dinner, said to a keen golfer, "I often see you in your red coat. Do you need many dogs to play golf?" A young lady said she knew exactly how the game was played. "They get what they call caddies to hunt about in the grass till they find a round stone, and then they hit it into a rabbit hole." A third lady, who had evidently enjoyed a nearer view of the game, said, "It is played by two men. One is a gentleman and the other is a common man. The common man sticks a ball on a lump of dirt and the gentleman knocks it off!"

HIS OPINION.

"I observe," said Professor Pate, "that there is going on among the bards an acrimonious wrangle over the statement, recently published, that Kansas City has the worst poet in the world."

"None of them need be jealous," snarled J. Fuller Gloom. "Any poet is the worst in the world. Every poet is worse than every poet."—Kansas City Star.

NEWLYWED STYLE.

A young farmer's bride who recently undertook the management of the horticultural department of the farm writes the agricultural editor as follows: "What can I do to make my potatoes grow? I peed them ever so carefully before planting them, but they haven't even come up yet."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

STILL UNDER DEBATE

"The world was created within a week, according to Genesis."

"Yes," replied Senator Burghum; "but according to the Congressional Record it is far from being completed."

Kentucky Mothers

Paducah, Ky.—"I wish to state some facts about Dr. Pierce's Great Kidney Medicine, 'Favorite Prescription.' I used it during expectancies and found it the best remedy I could get. I always feel strong and my back never gives me any trouble at all. I have used it at other times and it acts like a charm, it takes away all aches and pains and promotes regularity."

"I hope others will try it for it is a blessing to women."—MRS. M. GRIFFIN, 1241 Trimble St.

A Kentucky Woman Who Suffered

Paducah, Ky.—"After first becoming a mother, I was in miserable health. I developed a severe case of feminine trouble and suffered with backaches and pains in my side. I got so bad that I was a complete nervous and physical wreck and had given up hopes of getting better when I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I soon started to improve and was convinced that I had found the right medicine for my trouble. I kept on taking the Prescription and my health was completely restored."—MRS. ANNIE SMITH, 1119 N. 12th St.

Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best for women's diseases. He learned it all through treating them in his cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening drains, pains, irregularities, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. In liquid or tablet form, and Dr. Pierce's Invariable Remedy, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c for large trial package tablets.
